

FEDERAL COURT AIDS PEABODY

It Sustains Colorado's Chief Executive in Keeping Troops at Strike.

JUSTICE COURTS ARE DENOUNCED

Attorney General Says That State Cannot Get Fair Trials in Teller County from Justices at the Present Time.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)

Denver, Colo., Jan. 28.—Following the action of Judge Hallett of the federal district court declining to assume jurisdiction in the Colorado strike situation, the state supreme court upheld the program of Governor Peabody in the employment of the state militia to suppress lawlessness in the Cripple Creek district and insure the running of the mines with any labor the property owners could obtain.

The case under consideration, was that of Sherman Parker, a member of the executive committee of the Western Federation of Miners in the district, who is held in the military bullpen charged with complicity in the Vindicator explosion which killed two men. Attorneys for the prisoner argued that Parker's detention in violation of the state laws and constitution.

Will Prefer Charges.

Attorney General Miller, after announcing to the bench that the military authorities would prefer charges and turn Parker over to the civil courts for trial, said: "Governor Peabody and Mr. Crump, who represent the governor in Cripple Creek, both tell me that there is no use in going into the justice courts of Teller county to have these men prosecuted. They have abandoned all proceedings before justices of the peace, as they feel they can get no satisfaction. That is why the case against Parker was ignored.

Dismisses Prisoner.

"One case was recited to me where the evidence against a striker was strong, but the court dismissed him, and as court adjourned the justice stood idly by and saw the prosecuting witness assaulted.

"That is why they will not push the cases against strikers in the justice courts. They say that the state can hope for no justice, and that the witnesses arrayed against the strikers are assaulted and beaten under the very eyes of the officers of the law," called Governor Anarchist.

Attorney Horace N. Hawkins, representing the Western Federation of Miners and Parker, said: "The words of the executive of this state are as varying as the wind, and I ask this court if you are going to permit this damnable course to be pursued further." Mr. Hawkins branded the acts of the governor as anarchy in its worst form, and he added that the failure of the courts to give fair play would amount to the breeding of anarchy and anarchy.

Mr. Hawkins said that Parker was the brains of the Western Federation of Miners; that the military authorities desired to prevent him from managing the strike in Cripple Creek and so kept him locked up on false charges preferred by attorneys for the Mine Owners' association.

Methodist Church Is Destroyed. Griggsville, Ill., Jan. 28.—The Methodist Episcopal church here was totally destroyed by fire. It was erected in 1884 at a cost of $13,000, and was insured for $4,000 in the Methodist Church Insurance Company of Chicago.

SUCKER POLITICIANS ARE MEETING AT SPRINGFIELD

Republicans of Illinois Will Hold Their State Convention on May 12—Much Diplomacy Is Used.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—The Republican state convention will be held in Springfield Thursday, May 12. This was agreed on at a meeting of the state committee held in the state house.

There was a contest over the selection of the place. W. E. Hull, Fred H. Smith and R. D. Clark came as a delegation from Peoria to invite the convention to that city. They offered the committee $5,000 in cash, the free use of a convention hall, and the hotel expenses of the state committee during the convention, and to guarantee to provide all things necessary. Springfield wins.

Dr. A. L. Converse, representing Springfield, offered to pay the expenses of the committee, to furnish hall, music, printing and whatever else might be needed for the convention.

On a vote by ballot Springfield won by 21 for Springfield to 9 for Peoria. The resolution favoring Springfield was offered by J. R. Crowley, and James McKinney wanted a ye and may vote, but the ballot proposition prevailed.

Basis of Representation. The basis of representation in the convention was fixed at one delegate for each 400 votes cast for McKinley for president in 1900. This rule was to apply to all counties, including Cook, Kane, and La Salle, which have adopted the primary election law and hoped to have an increased number of delegates. As the law cannot be abrogated these counties will have more delegates than they would be entitled to on the 1900 vote basis, but their voting power in the convention will be limited to the 400 apportionment basis.

More Delegates Than Votes. Thus, under the primary law, La Salle county is entitled to forty-seven delegates. La Salle will elect and send to the convention forty-seven delegates, but they will be allowed only twenty-nine votes in the convention. In like manner Kane county will have thirty-five delegates, but only thirty votes. Cook will have seventeen delegates and twelve votes.

Cicero, in Cook, will have three delegates, but only one vote. The representation of Cook county will not be changed except as to Cicero. Cook will have 537 delegates and 629 votes in the convention.

County Conventions.

Mr. Deenen offered a resolution that the call for the convention include a provision that all county conventions in counties where conventions have not yet been called be held on the same day. He said this was in accordance with Gov. Yates' statement in his speech at the love feast.

C. E. Snively of Canton opposed this. He said the state committee, being the creature of the state convention, has no power over county committees until the state convention shall give it such power. Mr. Snively offered as a substitute for Mr. Deenen's motion that the matter be referred to the committee to prepare a constitution for the party government.

New Charter for Chicago. Mr. Crowley opposed Mr. Deenen's motion, unless the state committee could guarantee that counties disregarding it would be debarred from the convention.

Other committeemen opposed the Deenen proposition, and finally Mr. Snively's substitute was adopted by a vote of 27 to 3.

John H. Pierce of Kewanee presented the resolution adopted by the new charter convention of Chicago, and it was adopted, and the endorsement of the charter will be presented to the state convention.

Rose Is a Candidate.

Secretary Rose announced himself a candidate for governor to a delegation of Republican delegates representing twenty-nine counties in southern Illinois, who called on him at his office. Among those present were: Senator D. W. Helm, Metropolis; P. T. Chapman, Vienna; Judge A. K. Vickers, Vienna; Judge J. C. Willis, Metropolis; A. L. Millsbaugh, Shawneetown; Col. John H. Barton, Carbondale; Maj. J. B. Kuykendall, Vienna; J. B. Blackman, Harrisburg; A. V. Walker and John H. Brown, Golconda; J. B. Messick, East St. Louis. These men informed Mr. Rose that Republicans in their counties desired him to become a candidate. After a two hours' talk over the situation Mr. Rose announced himself a candidate. He will open headquarters soon and will make an active campaign.

WEIGHING THE CHANCES.

LETTER COMES TO BEDFORD WOMAN

It Is Not Given Much Thought by Police Who Have Other Clues.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.) Bedford, Ind., Jan. 28.—Mrs. Martha Johnson, the keeper of a boarding-house where Miss Schaefer boarded, has received an anonymous letter this morning from Cincinnati. It was dated Bedford, Jan. 25th, and mailed in Cincinnati and signed "The Great Man," and says that he killed Miss Schaefer because she refused to marry him. "We had a few words about the matter," he says, "there are three of us to catch your smart detectives." The handwriting resembles that of the strange man on the Park hotel register. The detectives pay small heed to the letter as new clues furnished by Sheriff Larabee of Hancock county are being investigated. It involves a man at New Castle, who had reddish moustache and long overcoat, and who returned the day after the crime.

NEW PRECEDENT IN COUNTY LAWS

Decision of Judge Zimmerman at Madison May Have General Affect Upon State.

(Special to The Gazette.) Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—Ella V. Sandon, the 14-year-old adopted daughter of Robert Sandon who died April 17, 1902, leaving an estate valued at more than $100,000 in real and personal property scattered in Minnesota, Kansas, California and Wisconsin, and who left a will by the terms of which the entire estate went to the widow, has obtained a decision of the county court setting aside the will to the extent of $30,000 which she will take. The decision establishes a precedent in Wisconsin.

Under this construction of the law a child legally adopted subsequent to the execution of a will in which he is not mentioned may take his share the same as he would were he a natural child and the foster parent had died intestate. The operation of the law in the Sandon case is a direct reversal of the testator's intentions. He evidently intended that the adopted child should share with his other children at the discretion of the widow, who took the bulk of the estate, while now the adopted child takes directly about 25 per cent at once and the natural children are without anything except that which the widow may leave or give to them.

PROFIT SHARING MADE A SUCCESS

Employees of the Baker Manufacturing Company Receive Their Bonus of 69 Per Cent.

(Special to The Gazette.) Evansville, Wis., Jan. 28.—The Baker Manufacturing company completed its annual inventory, which gives the net result of the fifth year of its plan of profit sharing. Last year was dull and on this account would give the experiment a severe test, and there was considerable anxiety among the men as to the results. The net earnings after paying 5 per cent dividend on the preferred stock were sufficient to pay 5 per cent dividend on the common stock and increase the earnings of labor and preferred stock 69.17 per cent. A man who had received $600 for his year's wages received in addition $115.62, 15 per cent of this amount being paid in cash and the rest in common stock. The five years' experience in profit sharing by this company is a large per cent of saving in shop waste.

TEXAS ITCH PROVES BLESSING IN DISGUISE

Wolves and Coyotes Become Affected With the Disease After Eating Carcasses on the Prairies.

Oacoma, S. D., Jan. 28.—About four years ago the commission firm of Becker & Dezan shipped into Lyman county from Texas about 10,000 head of cattle for the range. It proved to be a bunch that was slightly affected with the Texas itch. The result was a contamination of the range cattle in a greater or less degree. Stockmen have by great diligence almost wiped out the disease, but still there is an occasional case let run until the animal dies.

Now comes a strange development in the matter. Wolves and coyotes have become infected, and it is no uncommon thing to see a coyote sneezing on the prairie, utterly devoid of hair. Many of the animals have died from the effect of the cold, and stockmen believe that the entire extermination of the pests is only a matter of a short time.

TO EXAMINE THE EYES AND EARS

Professional Investigation of Condition of All School-Children in the State Decided Upon.

(Special to The Gazette.) Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—The school children of Wisconsin will be subjected to careful professional examinations of their eyes and ears as the result of action taken by the state board of health at a meeting here yesterday. The suggestion of the necessity for such an examination came from the state university, department of child study and education, a series of extended investigations by Professor M. V. O'Shea and a number of students having determined that 38 per cent of the school children are defective of vision or hearing or both. The state board of health determined that upon entrance to the public schools each pupil shall be examined and if found defective in vision or auditory powers the parents shall be notified with the suggestion that corrective measures be taken. The Wisconsin system will be substantially that in effect in the state of Illinois.

SUBMITS PLANS FOR NEW NAVY

Secretary Moody Confers with House Committee on Naval Affairs Regarding Boats.

HE OUTLINES BUILDING PROGRAM

One Plan Calls for Thirty-Four Millions; the Other for four Millions Less, But Cuts Off Two Vessels Planned.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Secretary Moody has concluded his recommendations before the house committee on naval affairs. He presented two plans as the building program for next year. The first was based on the expenditure of $34,000,000 and included provision for one battleship, one armored cruiser, three protected cruisers, four scout cruisers, two squadron colliers and two submarine boats. The second plan provides for an expenditure of $30,000,000, and is a duplicate of the first program, with the elimination of two of the scout cruisers.

The secretary recommended building naval stations at Guantanamo, Cuba, and Subig Bay, P. I. The station in Cuba is to cost ultimately $12,000,000 and the one in the Philippines $9,000,000. One million dollars is asked this year for the Guantanamo station and a little less than that amount for the one in the Philippines.

The secretary said that the appropriation for submarine boats was not expended last year, and he should recommend that this amount be reappropriated. It was his intention to expend the money for the best type of submarine boat after he had decided the matter by tests of various models.

The general discussion revealed a desire on the part of the committee that the strength of the navy by 1919 should be forty-eight battleships and half that number of armored cruisers, with auxiliary boats in proportion.

TREATY TO STAND.

Canal Agreement With Panama to Pass in Original Form.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The Panama canal treaty will not be amended. This decision was reached by the senate committee on foreign relations which considered the amendments for the purpose of better defining the canal zone, giving the United States more control over the harbors and over sanitary regulations. As none of these amendments was essential the committee, acting upon information furnished the state department by W. I. Buchanan, who has been nominated as minister to Panama, and is now there serving under a special commission, decided to withdraw all the amendments. Mr. Buchanan reports that should the treaty be returned to the Panama government complications would likely arise which would postpone actual work upon the canal. Senator Cullom of Illinois, chairman of the committee, will, therefore, have the amendments withdrawn and the treaty will be ratified in the form in which it was approved by the Panama junta.

PRaise FROM GERMANS.

Berlin Chamber of Commerce Has Good Word for American Meats.

Washington, Jan. 28.—"Nothing can take the place of American bacon as a cheap and nutritious article of food for the masses of our population," says the Berlin Chamber of Commerce in its last annual report. "Therefore it would be a matter of deep regret if the high import duties of the new tariff law were not reduced to a reasonable degree. The year 1903 will test the ability of German meat packers to supply the country with canned beef, which formerly was supplied by the United States and Australia, excellent in quality and cheap in price. Hitherto German canned beef has not come up to the foreign product in quality and appearance; whether it will improve in these respects remains to be seen. However this may be, there is just cause for feeling that German canned meat will be so high in price as to fail of becoming a popular food; consequently the injury which will be caused by the new laws will be obviated if foreign canned meat is again allowed to come into Germany."

CHANGES ATTORNEYS BY CONSENT OF COURT

An Unexpected Climax Came in the Society Scandal Trial in Chicago This Morning—Compromising Letters Not Found.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.) Chicago, Jan. 28.—An unexpected climax came this morning in the Tibbels-Thurston trial when the prisoner demanded the privilege of a statement to the court. His counsel at first refused to permit him to do so, but the conclusion threatened to make it in open court and finally Judge Dunne and Tibbels retired to the court chambers for twenty minutes. Later the court returned and announced at the request of the defendant's attorney, Clare, be deposed and another attorney, Moritz Rosenthal, be appointed. The court then adjourned until tomorrow. The officers searched for the alleged compromising letters all night, but were unable to find them.

BUYERS STILL IN THE COUNTY

PRICES ABOUT THE SAME AS LAST WEEK.

GROWERS ASK 11 AND 12 CENTS

The Weather Will Not Yet Permit the Remainder of the Crop to Be Taken Down.

During the past week there have been many tobacco buyers riding through the county trying to make contracts for the new crop with the growers. They do not feel much disposed to let their tobacco go at present prices offered by the buyers. The crop is certainly a good one and should receive at least a fair price. The prices paid at the present writing are from 7 to 10 cents for the best grades, a prominent grower of the weed said today that in his 12 years' experience he has never seen such a good crop harvested as the one now hanging in the shed. Growers claim that 11 and 12 cents are low prices for the present crop.

Wisconsin.
Reports indicate that packers have got tired of waiting and have cut loose and are buying tobacco notwithstanding their reported declaration that they would not enter the field until the tobacco was stripped and they could make a fair estimate of the quality of the goods they were getting. As the tobacco is still hanging powder-dry in the sheds, it cannot be said that buyers have much chance of examining the leaf; but seeing that the prospects of more advantageous conditions are still remote, they appear to be willing to take some risks. A number of contracts subsequently are reported, but the figures are low, seven and eight cents for wrappers and binder grades. Doubtless buyers figure that there will be some loss and they cannot be expected to pay fancy prices for what may turn out to be an inferior article. Farmers, on the other hand, recognize that the winter is going fast, and even should casing weather come soon, they will hardly be in a position to sort the crop.

Shipments out of storage from Edgerton amounted to 1,300 cases for the week.

Ohio.
Casing weather has not come, and the tobacco still remains on the poles. It is reported that a few persons have taken down small portions in the hope of the tobacco coming into case by being piled up in a warm room.

New York.
The deadlock is still unbroken. The greater part of the crop is still on the poles with no prospect of getting it down, as stalks are frozen solid and a large amount of dampness will be necessary. No sales of consequence have been reported.

New England.
The hoped for January thaw is still in the future, and the continued cold has rendered it impossible to take any more tobacco from the poles except in the few cases where artificial means of moistening has been resorted to. A few sales have been made, mostly at low prices, but buyers, for the most part, are holding off until they have an opportunity for a proper inspection of the leaf. In shade-grown leaf the situation is a little more satisfactory, as tobacco under cloth does not require so long or so warm a damp to get into suitable condition as the outside tobacco. The shade growers have been able to get down their crops much earlier than others and the assorting and sweating is well under way.

OTHER TEACHERS SIGNED NOTES

Rock County Teachers Were Not the Only Sufferers from Book Agents and Notes.

Evidently the Rock county teachers are not the only ones who have suffered at the hands of unscrupulous book agents and have found that innocent contracts for books were in reality notes to pay sums of money. Word comes from La Crosse, Vernon and Monroe counties that the extent of the swindling in these counties will reach the sum of $50,000. Thus far in Rock county the losses recorded will not be over $1,000 at the most, but evidently a more fertile field was found in the north and the men who sold books and at the same time secured notes without delivering the goods made a good thing of it.

IN COLLISION NEAR VALLEY JUNCTION

Fred Marzluff Was a Passenger in Train That Clashed Into a Freight Train Yesterday Morning.

Fred M. Marzluff of the Marzluff Shoe Co. was one of the passengers on the train that crashed into the rear end of a freight train at slow speed between Valley Junction and Warren on the Omaha division of the North-Western road at half past one o'clock Wednesday morning. He was thrown from his berth but sustained only a few bruises. Mr. Marzluff has been dressed and with the other passengers, none of whom were seriously injured, assisted in extinguishing the flames which enveloped the rear freight cars and caboose. In the first excitement some of the passengers essayed to leave the car in their night robes but thought better of it when the door was opened and the cold blast from the north struck their naked limbs.

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workingman.

A committee from the State Federation of Labor called upon Governor Peabody, of Colorado, recently in upon pressing three strict demands as follows:
1. That the troops be withdrawn from the strike districts.
2. That the vagrancy order be rescinded.
3. That the men deported from Teller and San Miguel counties be permitted to return to their homes and allowed the rights which are theirs under the constitution.
The governor's replies were clear-cut yet specific. He assured his callers that the troops would be recalled as quickly as prudence and discretion would justify, and that the so-called "vagrancy" order was not intended for good citizens.

The Ohio miners' convention Jan. 15 decided to make permanent the assessment on earnings of miners for a relief or defense fund. Fifteen thousand dollars is to be kept available at all times for immediate needs. The initiation fee for experienced men was raised to $10, with a view to checking the influx of foreigners to the mines in Ohio. The convention refused to concur in a resolution presented by the Columbus Trades and Labor Assembly condemning the coal-cars carrying and coal-producing combinations of the state. President Haskins advised the miners to keep out of the controversy, as a fight for cheaper coal did not mean less profits for mining companies, railroads, but cheaper wages for miners.

Twenty thousand railway clerks in the United States, Canada and Mexico are members of the new association formed by combining the National Railway Clerks' association and the Order of Railway Clerks of America. The new order will probably be called the National Order of Railway Clerks of America. It will in no way have any connection with the American Federation of Labor. The first national convention will be held at St. Louis, on the third Monday in June. The announced objects of the new organization are "the elevation of the standard of efficiency, the promotion of the welfare of its members, socially, morally, intellectually and financially, and the assisting of worthy members to secure employment as well as to give them pecuniary aid in time of sickness."

The lockout of marble workers declared by the National Marble Dealers' association four months ago is ended, a settlement having been reached recently. The employers agree to not discriminate against union men and will reinstate all employees now idle. A convention of marble workers will be held in New York in February to discipline the officers of the International union who made the agreement at Buffalo that caused the lockout. This was a part of the agreement with the employers.

The American Federation of Labor embraces more than 2,400 different labor unions, with a membership of 2,000,000 workmen. During the past year there have been issued new charters for twenty international unions, three state federations, 171 central labor unions and more than 1,000 local and federal unions.

The efforts of the Australian labor party representatives undoubtedly will be bent toward securing recognition of unions, a limitation of the hours of labor, compulsory arbitration and discrimination against foreign vessels in the coast trade.

CRUSADER IN A NEW FIELD

C. W. ARNOLD COMES TO WARN YOUNG WOMEN AGAINST

THE TRAPS LAID FOR THEM

In the "Want Ad" Columns of the Big City Dailies—Says St. Louis Vice Trust Is Realty.

C. W. Arnold of Minneapolis is in Janesville on an unusual mission. He is engaged as a free-lance in a campaign against those who through decoy advertisements in the great metropolitan newspapers and other agencies seek to lure young girls from their homes to the haunts of vice and shame in the large cities. He seeks to put parents as well as the young men and women on their guards as more than the idle fancies of punishment of sharpers and those who traffic in human souls wherever it may be possible to ensure them.

Vice Trust Is Realty
Statements concerning the formation of a "vice trust" in St. Louis which were lately published broadcast in this country and still later ridiculed in certain quarters, he regarded as more than the idle fancies of sensationalists and alarmists. They are especially cautioned against giving any heed to the advertisements appearing in the want columns of the city papers which offer a visit to the fair "with good positions and large salaries to bright, attractive, young women—no experience necessary," etc.

No Ostensible Backing
While Mr. Arnold is backed by no regularly formed organization at this time he believes that he is clearing the way for the formation of such an association which will be national in its scope. From certain sources he is daily kept informed of the cases of abduction and kidnapping, and the mysterious disappearances of young men and women in all parts of the country and the press clippings sent to him are enormous in volume. He is contemplating the formation of a bureau of information of this kind which he expects will eventually be formed.

Shadow in Own Life
The visitor says that his interest in this sort of work first began fifteen years ago when the little daughter of a near relative was enticed away from home, never to be found again, though years were spent in the search. The narrative is the first one told in a series of sketches entitled "What Will You Do About It?" which he has written. The sale of this book supplies the funds necessary for his crusade. Mr. Arnold has traveled over a wide territory but this is his first visit to Wisconsin. His home address is 327 Fifth street, S. E., Minneapolis.

STATE SCHOOL TO EXHIBIT AT FAIR

This Institution Will Be Well Represented at the St. Louis Exposition.

Pupils of the State School for the Blind are hard at work these days preparing their exhibits to be sent to the St. Louis exposition. Samples of the pupils' work in the following departments will be forwarded to the exhibition: Weaving, manual training, mattress making, broom making, chair caning, and piano tuning. The young ladies of the school will send samples of their work in the domestic science, sewing and knitting departments; there will also be samples of the work of the scholars in the musical and literary departments. About seventy-five photographs have been taken of the different departments, while the students were at work, also interior and exterior views of the building will accompany the exhibits. The whole is to be shipped to Milwaukee, as the exhibits are supposed to reach that city not later than February 1st.

BELOIT MAN HAS LONG, COLD WALK

Comes to Meeting of County Board from Line City on Foot—Nips His Ears.

If the interurban railroad had a measure up for consideration before the county board of supervisors at this time, it would receive scant consideration from at least one member of that body. Supervisor A. C. Powers of the town of Beloit, Mr. Powers is today nursing a black, frost-bitten ear which he says came to him on account of one of the cars on the inter-city line, whizzing by while he stood along the line waving frantically to become a passenger.

Yesterday Mrs. Powers left her home four miles north of the city and drove to within two miles of Janesville as he had to call on a number of farmers along the way. But he finally left his rig and walked to the trolley line. He was about forty feet short of the track when the car whirled by. He made all the racket he could, but the car did not stop and the supervisor had an important meeting that afternoon he was compelled to walk to the city two miles away. It happened that the lobe of one ear peeped from under the cap and soon after arriving at the court house the member pained him enough to make positive that it was frozen. Before the meeting was over, it was three inches thick and still swelling. No later reports have been received.—Beloit Free Press.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpelde Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair-vigors may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair? No, they do not, but Herpelde does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life. Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Herpelde stands the test of use. It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpelde Co., Detroit, Mich.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; if it becomes turbid, it indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, cures every ailment in the urinary tract, and restores the system to its normal condition of health. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects from using liquor, wine or beer, and becomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest test of its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, January 28, 1864.—Where to find her.—Any one having lost a red and white cow will find her by looking in the mill race.—Such a nannal went to drink this morning, and disappeared beneath the ice. If people will allow their cattle to be running around loose they must expect to lose them in this way, at this season of the year.—The race won't run milk, we suspect, if all the cows in town are dissolved in it.

Nashville, Jan. 27.—Later information from Gen. Dodge, at Paducah, Tenn., under date of the 26th, states that the rebels crossed the Tennessee river last evening and attack Athens this morning, and were defeated. They are now trying to get back. Troops at Athens had mostly gone to Florence to attack Johnston's force crossing there, and Col. Harrison with 600 rebels and two pieces of artillery, took advantage of their absence. He was badly defeated.

Still, later advice says that Dodge has whipped Johnston's forces at Florence. In all probability the raid is at an end.

critical condition for some time in New York City. Our representative has therefore been necessarily absent from his seat in congress most of the time since the session commenced.

Louisville, Jan. 27.—The Frankfort Kentucky Legislature elected George D. Prentice, the editor of the Journal, State Printer on the third ballot, by a unanimous vote.

Desertions.—Our readers cannot fail to notice the constant accumulation of indications of the desertions in the ranks of the rebel army. Yesterday two regiments attempted to desert in a bid and were only prevented by a severe fight with the strong guard that is has become necessary to place over them. Squads of men come into our line daily, and the number is becoming so great that it must cause serious embarrassment to the rebel generals. The whole thing is about getting ready to fall, and great will be the fall thereof.

PNEUMONIA IN SEASON

How the Disease Develops and How to Prevent it.
Neglect of colds is responsible for more deaths than the whole list of diseases. Pneumonia is quickly developed at this season of the year and unless you cure the cold right away you are in great danger of being taken down with the disease. When you take "cough balsams" or "syrups" containing deadly drugs that weaken the body, you are inviting Pneumonia.

You will understand how that is just as well as your doctor, if you stop to think that over 99 per cent. of these mixtures depend for their effect entirely upon opium, morphine and other poisonous drugs they contain—an effect which is simply a temporary deadening of the nerves at the expense of weakening the body.

The system thus weakened is not able to drive off the visiting germs of pneumonia—and the cold reaches the lining of the lungs, they become inflamed and congested, and you are down with pneumonia. If your system has been too much weakened by poisonous drugs you may not get up again because it is a question whether or not you have fighting power enough left in your body to fight off the disease.

As has been said in this paper, Father John's Medicine cures colds and prevents pneumonia. It drives off the cold and gives vital force to the system so that pneumonia can be fought off; it strengthens the body because it is all pure nourishment, without opium, morphine, or any of the poisonous drugs contained in the over 99 per cent. of "cough balsams" and "syrups" referred to above.

While this is written to call your attention to Father John's Medicine—what an eminent specialist prescribed for the late Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., 50 years ago, and which is not a patent medicine—what we have told you about pneumonia is authentic and important for you to know. It may save your life.

We know what Father John's Medicine will do—has done for 50 years—and we want you to know also that we refund the money for any cough or cold that it cannot cure—for body building, tonic and all that we claim for it. If you are not satisfied with the results we refund your money. Endorsed by physicians, by the clergy, hospitals and the thousands who have taken it.

The Badger Drug company, corner Milwaukee and River streets, sell Father John's Medicine.

Prayer meetings will be held at the M. E. church every evening this week.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church will meet at Mrs. D. M. Spicer's next Thursday afternoon. It is desired that all the ladies interested will be present, as a meeting of unusual interest is anticipated.

Despite the severe cold weather of last Sabbath Mr. Maurer drove from Beloit and preached a very interesting sermon at the Congregational church.

Worshiped the Cat.

The people of Egypt, who had many idols, worshiped the cat, among others. They thought she was like the moon, because she was more attractive at night, and because her eyes changed like the moon, which is sometimes full and at other times only a light crescent, or, as we say, a half moon. So they made an idol with a cat's head, and named it Pasht. The same name they gave to the moon, for the word means "the face of the moon." The word has been changed to "Pash," and "Pash" has come at last to be "Puss."

Prisoners Went on Strike.
Fifteen prisoners at the county jail in Paterson, N. J., struck because they thought they were being worked too hard and it took diplomacy to win them back to their jobs.

The county is moving its libraries from the old court house to the new and the prisoners were made to carry the books.

After several trips they held an indignation meeting. One was appointed walking delegate to present their view of the matter to Keeper Munson.

Meanwhile Clerk Sautter of the probate court had "set 'em up" for the unwilling workers, and when Keeper Munson arrived he told the men that they could take their own time, but he wished they would finish the job.

They finally decided to do it, but their efforts thereafter were mainly devoted to dodging the heavy work, which was, however, completed without further strike.—New York Herald.

A MORMON MATRON.

Mrs. Fred Smoot, Wife of the United States Senator From Utah.

Mrs. Reed Smoot, wife of the senator from Utah, whose right to a seat in the United States senate is disputed on the ground that he is a polygamist, is a handsome, matronly woman with an expressive face and charming manner. As Miss Alpha M. Eldridge she was one of the belles of Salt Lake City twenty years ago. She is a daughter of General H. S. Eldridge, a relative of

MRS. REED SMOOT.

Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States. Her marriage to Senator Smoot took place in Salt Lake City sixteen years ago, and they have six children—three boys and three girls—the eldest, Harold, being seventeen years of age. Their home is now at Provo, about forty-five miles from Salt Lake City.

Abraham O. Smoot, father of the senator, was a polygamist, and Reed's mother was his third wife, Anne Kirk-Smith, who was born in Norway. Reed was her third child and the oldest son of a family of seven children.

The senator's first work after he graduated from the University of Deseret, now the Brigham Young academy, at Provo, was as a porter in the Provo Co-operative Mercantile institution. A year later, at the age of eighteen, he became manager of the concern, in which his father held a large interest. His fortune is now estimated at a million.

He was "called and set apart" as an apostle of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in 1900. The Mormon church is ruled by a first presidency, consisting of the president and his two counselors. Next in authority is the quorum of twelve apostles. Their jurisdiction is the world, wherever the numerous ramifications of the church extend. Devout Mormons look upon the president of the church as the direct representative of God on earth. The apostles are the agents of God. Senator Smoot is in the line of promotion, and, being younger than most of his associates, may one day become president of the church.

AUTHOR AND PREACHER.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Who is to be Chaplain of the Senate.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale, famous author, lecturer and preacher, who, beginning the new year, is to be chaplain of the United States senate, is a survivor of that class of writers and thinkers of which Emerson, Lowell and Parkman were conspicuous representatives.

He was born in Boston, and after graduating from Harvard in 1839 he studied theology and became a Unitarian minister. From 1840 to 1856 he was pastor of the Church of the Unity, Worcester, Mass., since which time he has been pastor of the South Congregational church, Boston.

Dr. Hale has published a large number of books, but the story that first gave him international fame was "The Man Without a Country," which appeared in 1881. Dr. Hale celebrated his eighty-first birthday last April and is an honored man in a green old age.

Personally Dr. Hale is a very striking figure, tall, slender and alert in movement, nearly always walking instead of riding or driving. He generally carries a little leather bag and an umbrella. His face, framed in luxuriant hair, reminds one a little of Webster, save that the deep set eyes are not so solemn, but have a twinkle of kindness or fun about them. It is not a handsome face, but it is fascinating, for it is original.

BEAUTIES OF CAPRI

CHARMING ISLAND IN THE BAY OF NAPLES.

Wonderful Scenery and Brilliant Color Tones Make the Spot a Paradise for the Artist—inhabitants Happy and Contented With Little.

(Special Correspondence.)

The rocky islands of Capri and Ischia seem like giant portals placed to guard entrance to the charming Bay of Naples. It is claimed that Capri is the ancient island of the sirens, being the first land that Ulysses would have passed after leaving Circe at Ischia on his voyage to Sicily. On its southern shore the white limestone rocks, still called "Le Sirene," represent the "human bones" that whiten all the ground of the poor sailors who were lured to destruction by the song of the sirens.

To-day the song one hears on approaching the island is less alluring, and the sirens resolve themselves into a group of vigorous peasant women eagerly clamoring to carry the traveler's baggage, which they balance on their heads with the fine poise peculiar to people who make a practice of carrying loads in this manner. And such loads! A large trunk seems to them a mere bagatelle. For a wage that in America would be deemed scarcely sufficient for one hour, they will trudge all day long up and down the steep, stony path leading from the landing place to the village nestling on the side of the cliff, nearly five hundred feet above the water, bearing great baskets of lemons and oranges, casks of wine, and even bales of hay, chatting merrily to each other in a cheerful manner, and seldom is it that one sees a careworn or discontented face. Their placid countenances and strong, lithe figures give to them an especial charm; some possess real beauty, suggestive of the ancient Greek type, a heritage from their Hellenic ancestors. The little girls, devoid of imitating their elders, play at carrying loads on the head, and seemingly derive great pleasure in walking about in a sedate manner with several good-sized stones balanced on their round little pates. These youngsters never need dolls, for the babies, of which every family has a continuous supply, are left almost entirely to their care, and the patience and good nature they display in guarding their small charges is highly creditable.

The picturesque effect of scenery and brilliant color tones, so distinctive of Capri, prove especially seductive to artists of all nationalities. Here they come, many to remain for years, and occasionally one marries a Capri maiden who has served as his model. Indeed, the artists have made such an impression on this susceptible people that the Roman Catholic priests have intervened, and prohibited the girls to pose for the painters, which on the whole is a wise measure, as the Capriotes are of a jealous, suspicious nature, and the maid who poses for the foreigner will win no lover among her countrymen.

Unfortunately but few American travelers see Capri in the summer time, kept away, probably, by the accounts one hears of the excessive heat in Southern Italy. The writer remained here from May to October, and only on the occasional days when the "sirocco" blow was the temperature decidedly unpleasant. They sky was never obscured by cloud or fog, and though at times the sun's rays beat down somewhat too fiercely, the air was generally fanned by a sea breeze.

Outside the Town.

loving people would add materially to their comfort, although, owing to the prosperity brought them by tourists and resident foreigners, they are much better conditioned than most of the peasantry of Italy, and one is not pained by the importunate and miserable beggars that infest other parts of that country.

In the early autumn the islanders are all occupied with the vintage, most important of all the industries here. When one is told that the juice is extracted from the grapes by the maidens treading them with their bare feet, one imagines that this must be a very beautiful sight, suggesting the ancient pictures of the festivals in praise of Bacchus. But, alas! The reality is far from attractive. To see a lot of untidy girls, their skirts spattered and feet streaming with purple juice, mashing down a mass of grapes in huge shallow vats, and to notice that they frequently jump out of the vats and run down the dusty path for a drink

Island Architecture.
During the summer season the temperature of the water remains almost constantly at 80 degrees, and bathing is a delight indulged in daily by nearly every one. One end of the beach is reserved for the women and the other end for the men. As there are very few bath-houses, the bathers hide themselves under a sheet while disrobing and robing; the effect of these sheets waving around in wild contortions is very comical, but they serve their purpose well. The working women usually bathe after dark, and sel-from the water jar, returning to the grape treading with the dust and gravel sticking to their feet, does not increase one's desire to drink the wine, which, however, is excellent, in spite of the primitive method of production.

At this season of the year large flocks of quail pass over the island on their long flight to their winter home in Africa, and the manner in which they are caught is most cruel and unsportsmanlike. In the first place, a few are snared, and their sight destroyed by searing their eyes with a red-hot wire. They are then put in cages placed under large nets, stretched between trees, where, because of their blindness, they keep constantly giving their call, which attracts the other quail, who become entangled in the meshes of the net, and are killed in great numbers.

"My profession is that of life insurance agent, and for several years I made the best record of any woman working for our company. The work is very exacting, and I succeeded only by keeping constant watch of myself, as friends warned me that I might have nervous prostration."

"In this business, as in many others, success depends almost entirely upon how you are feeling. A tired, low-spirited solicitor might as well stay at home."

"I used to take coffee in large quantities to keep my brain clear and my spirits up, but I knew this would injure my digestion and my nerves. I discovered that Paine's Celery Compound gave me just the strength I needed by feeding my nerves and keeping me in good health."

"I go out to my work every morning feeling bright and cheery and confident. If I did not I would never be able to make the income that I do."

"I suppose few people who have not been cured of diseases send you letters, but though I have never been sick, to speak of I thought what a great help Paine's Celery Compound had been to me when I was taking it yesterday morning, and I decided I would send you this letter.

"It has been worth actual money to me, as I doubt whether I would make half my present income if I did not have it." MRS. LEWIS MAY.
It is men and women who are "always at their best" who have made it and are making this country what it is.

Not all the busy people are burning out their nerves. There are thousands who understand that force must be supplied to the nerves if they are to keep their bodily health. And they take Paine's Celery Compound to supply it. The world needs more of such people.

Paine's Celery Compound is keeping thousands of people well—so well that few of them ever think to send in a written acknowledgment of the benefit.

THE PANAMA PAYMENT AND FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

It is quite confidently expected that the Panama Canal treaty will shortly be ratified by the Senate and that there will be little objection thereto by the leaders of the opposition political party. These statesmen who have prepared speeches on this subject will be afforded an opportunity for their delivery, and when discussion ends a vote will be taken and the ratification of the treaty will be accomplished.

The proposal by the Government of Panama to pay its proportion, based upon population, of the $15,000,000 foreign debt of the Republic of Colombia, provided the Colombian Government shall agree to recognize that of Panama will probably result in the establishment of friendly relations between the two states, thus removing a possible obstacle to the peaceful occupation by the United States, under the treaty, of the conceded territory. Should Colombia refuse to accede to the proposition of Panama the matter in dispute will doubtless be submitted to arbitration, but the delay should not prevent the beginning of the work upon the canal immediately after the exchange of treaty ratifications. Indeed it seems probable that this Government will take effective measures, after that event, to develop the canal property. The ending of suspense regarding ratification of the treaty will doubtless be followed by preparations by the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the stipulated sum of $10,000,000 to the Panama Canal Company and of $10,000,000 to the Republic of Panama; the latter making whatever distribution which may be agreed upon to the Government of Colombia. It is understood that the Panama Junta has already consented to the investment of its $10,000,000 in United States Government securities and, therefore, there will be no occasion for the remittance of this sum to Panama.

The foreign exchange market will doubtless be in such a condition, when the remittance of $10,000,000 to Paris for the account of the Panama Canal Company shall become necessary, as to permit the transfer of the money through exchange drafts against credits which have already been established, or which may be accumulated for this purpose, as was the case when the Philippine indemnity of $20,000,000 was remitted to Spain in 1899, through the National City Bank of New York and the Deutsche Bank of Berlin. The operation of transfer will probably absorb already established credits abroad and the drawing of about $8,000,000 sterling, as the most available medium, will quite naturally have the effect of materially advancing the rates for exchange during the process of transfer. Until the details of this operation shall be arranged it will, of course, be impossible to determine how long a period will be required to complete the transfer. Presumably, however, it will be effected in installments and at sufficient intervals to enable the bankers to procure the exchange drafts without serious disturbance to the market. Possibly the stock holders of the Panama Canal Company may agree to the acceptance of United States securities in part payment for the property in which case the requirements for exchange for transfer will be reduced by the amount of securities accepted.

Ample provision is made by the law passed in 1902 for the issue of $150,000,000 bonds for the construction of the canal, and if payment to the Panama Canal Company shall be made in part with bonds, the above noted issue will be available for this purpose. The remainder, or the whole of these bonds, if payment for the canal shall be required in cash, will, as they are issued from time to time, most likely be accepted by Secretary Shaw as pledge for public deposits, in lieu of other Government or of state and municipal bonds, with the stipulation that the United States securities so released shall be pledged as a basis for new bank note circulation. It will be seen, therefore, that the ratification of the Panama treaty will be followed by quite important events affecting foreign exchange and also the monetary situation directly and remotely. Exchange will, as previously noted, advance, according to the extent of the demand for bills for transfer of the canal payment; the money market will be temporarily abundantly supplied through the disbursement by the banks, in which the proceeds of the Treasury warrants shall be deposited, of funds for the purchase of exchange as a medium of the transfer, and facilities will be extended, through the substitution of Canal bonds for those of the United States for public deposits, thereby enabling bank note circulation to be augmented. The necessity which exists for the thorough reconstruction of the plant which has been employed by the Panama Canal Company and for its replacement with more modern mechanical appliances, will involve prompt contracting for the new machinery, and as this will most likely be procured in the United States, preparations for its construction will give a decided impetus to this branch of our industries. In various other ways, which will be suggested, including the transportation of men and of material, the Panama Canal project, even in its incipient stages, will contribute to the prosperity of the country.

Nashville American: It has ceased to be an argument as to which is the better route—Panama or Nicaragua. It is a question now of Panama or no canal—and this is not a serious question. The Panama treaty will be ratified, and the vast majority of American citizens will ratify the ratification. The obstructionists do not represent American interests.

Let us have a full meeting at both the sugar beet meeting and then at the mass meeting of the citizens on the railway question. City affairs can be understood by the citizens if they are placed squarely before them to understand.

With the interurban running and a sugar beet factory bringing farmers to town with plenty of money the Janesville merchants can consider they are doing fairly well.

What the Janesville people want is a franchise for an interurban that will allow a road to be built without a suit in the supreme court to decide whether it is legal or not.

Two or three men should not try to run city affairs to suit themselves. They were elected by the people and the demands of the people should be listened to.

Election is coming this spring the same as it always does. Read the writing on the wall and be wary. Interurbans may make a good campaign issue.

A club of business men in Janesville is not so far distant after all. Truly the city is awakening to the fact it has grown beyond the village mark.

Has anyone found out what package freight really is? If so speak up. It does not mean pigs in baggage cars that we know. Then what is it.

If that interurban would only be built then more people could come to town to trade and help out dull days of the merchants.

That mass meeting on Friday should settle much regarding the franchise question. Everyone should attend.

That mass meeting of citizens to find out what package freight is may disturb some of the councilmen somewhat.

Everything comes to those who wait. That interurban must come some day. Why not at once?

Now for the sugar beet factory and then the work of the year will be well begun.

Evidently the people of Janesville want an interurban and want it badly.

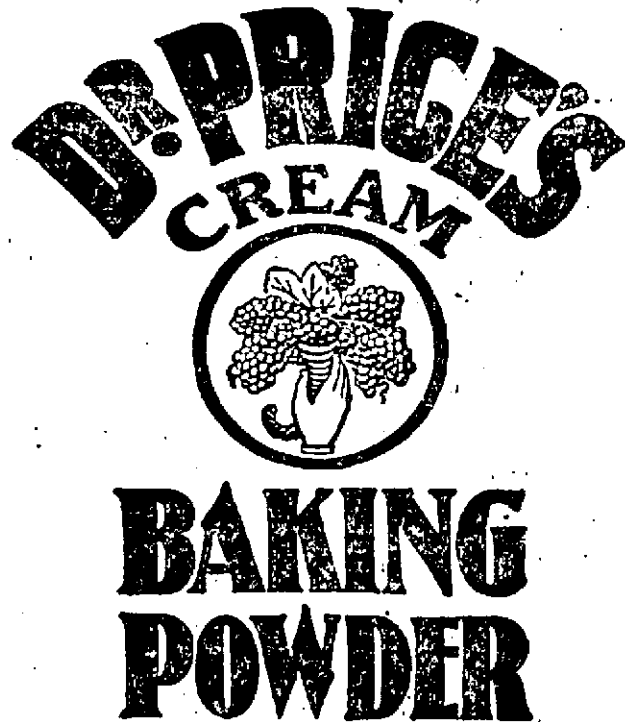

PRESS COMMENT.
Wausau Central Wisconsin: Democracy will do all it can to keep the present factional fight alive, and as long as the democratic papers can they will add fuel to the flame. Mr. La Follette, if nominated, hopes to win by democratic votes, but this is the year when the democratic party will do no fighting but will attend strictly to business and saw wood. That's their program and if possible it will be carried out.

Oconto Reporter: "Pitchfork" Tillman stalked out of the United States senate the other day because of Senator Spooner's speech on the Panama question. Now, if Senator Spooner could make a speech that would keep Tillman out he would be hailed as a public benefactor.

Eau Claire Telegram: A headline in an exchange is: "Cupid in Fond du Lac." This will help bachelors in other towns to understand why there has not been more doing in their respective localities since the first day of the year.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Evidently Mr. Bryan does not care so much who manages to secure the nomination, provided he is able to write the platform for the party.

SEND EXHIBIT TO ST. LOUIS

JANESVILLE SCHOOLS TO HAVE 350 FEET OF SPACE.

VERY INTERESTING SPECIMENS

Of Handwork in Manual Training,
Domestic Science, Drawing, and Designing To Be Shown.

Three hundred and fifty square feet of space in the great palace at the St. Louis exposition to be devoted entirely to education, has been allotted the Janesville public schools, and on Monday the exhibits of handwork by the scholars of this city will be boxed and forwarded to Warren D. Parker of Milwaukee who has charge of the Wisconsin section. Plans had been made to show these exhibits in Janesville before their departure for the fair but notice has recently been received that they must be sent on February 1 instead of March 1, as the original instructions specified.

Manual Training
The exhibit is divided into four departments: the manual training, domestic science, drawing, and the construction and designing work in the primary and higher grades. The instructors are busy mounting the specimens today. The manual training exhibit includes draughting charts and specimens of the four years' work in woodwork, benchwork, wood and iron lathe work, and forging. Mr. Logan is justly proud of some of the drawings that have been contributed by members in every class, showing construction lines of simple implements in the earlier stages of the work and intricate machinery in the later.

Domestic Science
Exhibits of plain and fancy sewing will constitute the major part of the domestic science department. There will be samples of overhand stitching, bastings, under-basting which includes side-stitching, tulle stitching, even, uneven, and running stitching; flannel-stitching, cross-stitching, back-stitching, half-back stitching, and hemming. The mere enumeration of these varieties of sewing is enough to stagger the average male who may have occasionally deluded himself with the idea that the whole art was included in the simple operation of sewing a button on his trousers. Mats with original borders, shirt-waists, and various other pieces of handwork by the pupils of Miss Coleman will be sent out. In addition to this there will be charts representing the different phases of cooking, and others showing the method used by Janesville butchers in cutting meat. These latter diagrams show the beef and porker in outline with all of the cuts of meat and the investigations made at the butcher shops prior to the drawing showed that the cuts in this city differ in some respects from the so-called "government cut." Certain roasts and steaks are omitted altogether here.

Drawing Department
The exhibition of drawings and water-color work from all the grades is unusually interesting. Surprising as it may seem, the boys are much better represented in this exhibit than the girls. Some remarkable "stories with the pencil" are told by the children just out of the kindergarten. These are drawn without models to illustrate incidents which the instructor has related to them. The Esquimaux and his hut, the sleigh ride, and a gorgeous sunrise in yellow are among the most noteworthy of the contributions. Remarkable landscape studies, drawings from plaster models of heads, and pictures of domestic animals have been offered by the scholars of the higher grades. Mrs. Hyde says that even the younger pupils have learned to distinguish the Egyptian, Grecian and other forms of architecture and decorative paintings and she deems this an important result of the drawing work.

Kindergarten Work
The construction work and designing from the kindergarten and primary and other grades is also very interesting and includes specimens of the paper cutting, folding and weaving, bead work, basket weaving, and some remarkable wood carving. The charts, showing this work are to be hung in their order of fall, winter, and spring, so that the special work done for seasons like Christmas and Thanksgiving, by each grade, will be in the same relative position on the walls. Over the local exhibit a large cloth banner bearing the legend "Janesville Public Schools" in blue and gold and painted by hand by Miss Julia Lovejoy, is to be hung.

He went to Chicago some years ago and succeeded very well in business until he was caught in the clutches of the law at the same time Brennan was charged with election frauds. IS CELESTIALS' NEW YEAR

According to Chicago Papers, But Hong Looe Says "Papers Lie"
Must Show Certificates.

Today is the Chinese New Year. According to the Chinese chronology it is the first day of the month of Jing of the thirtieth year of the reign of Emperor Kwang Su. There were no lambs, firecrackers, joss-sticks, or good things to eat in evidence at the business houses of the Janesville celestials, however. Hong Looe when "interviewed" at his laundry on River street spoke thusly in answer to the following questions:

"This is the Chinese New Year, isn't it?"
"No."
"They are celebrating it in Chicago, aren't they?"
"No."
"The Chicago papers say so."
"Papers lie. Three weeks."

To Be Inspected
United States Marshal Walter N. Durbin of Milwaukee is looking up the records of Chinese in this state and local celestials will be called upon soon to produce the certificates showing that they are entitled under the treaty of this country with China to live in the United States. They will also be required to show whether opium is smoked or not.

May Be Trouble
There are two Chinese laundries in Janesville and at least two Chinese in each of them. It could not be learned whether or not they have the required certificates. They took the news of the marshals coming with perfect composure, probably because they did not understand the English language sufficiently well to know its import. If they cannot that duce the papers and it is found that they "hit the pipe," they will be sent back to China.

The Mississippi Bubble

By EMERSON HOUGH

Author of "The Story of the Cowboy," "The Girl at the Halfway House," etc.

(Copyright, 1904, by Emerson Hough.)

"It would seem that your town is well fulfilled. But, now, since you deal in mysteries, I shall even ask you definitely, Sir Arthur, who, and what are you? Why do you come hither, and how shall we regard you?"

"I am, in the first place," said Sir Arthur, "messenger of my lord Belmont, governor at Albany of our English colonies. I add my chief errand, which has been to find Mr. Law, whom I would hold to an accounting."

"Oh, granted," replied Law, flicking lightly at the cuff of his tunic, "yet your errand still carries mystery."

"You have at least heard of the Peace of Ryswick, I presume?"

"No; how should I? And why should I care?"

"None the less, the king of England and the king of France are no longer at war, nor are their colonies this side of the water. There are to be no more raids between the colonies of New England and New France. The Hurons are to give back their English prisoners, and the Iroquois are to return all their captives to the French. The Western tribes are to render up their prisoners also, be they French, English, Huron or Iroquois. The errand of carrying this news was offered to me. It agreed well enough with my own private purposes. I had tracked you, Mr. Law, to Montreal, lost you to the Richelieu, and was glad enough to take up this chance of finding you farther to the West. And now, by the justice of heaven, as I have said, I have found you easily."

"And has Sir Arthur gone to sheriffing? Has my friend become constable? Is Sir Arthur a spy? Because, look you, this is not London, nor yet New France, nor Albany. This is Mesasabe! This is my valley. I rule here. Now, if kings, or constables, or even spies, wish to find John Law—why here is John Law. Now watch your people, and go you carefully here, else that may follow which will be ill extinguished."

Pembroke flung down his sword upon the ground in front of him.

"You are lucky, Mr. Law," said he, "lucky as ever. But surely, never was man so eminently deserving of death as yourself."

"You do me very much honor, Sir Arthur," replied Law. "Here is your sword, sir." Stooping, he picked it up and handed it to the other. "I did but ill if I refused to accord satisfaction to one bringing me such speech as that. 'Tis well you wear your weapons, Sir Arthur, since you come thus as emissary of the Great Peace! I know you for a gentleman, and I shall as no parole of you to-night; but meantime, let us wait until to-morrow, when I promise you I shall be eager as yourself. Come! We can stand here guessing and talking no longer. I am weary of it."

"They came now to the gate of the stockade, and there Pembroke stood for a moment in surprise and perplexity. He was not prepared to meet this dark-haired, wide-eyed girl, clad in native dress of skin, with tinkling metals at wrist and ankle, and on her feet the tiny, beaded shoes. For her part, Mary Conynge, filled with woman's curiosity, was yet less prepared for that which appeared before her—an apparition, as ran her first thought, come to threaten and affright."

"Sir Arthur!" she began, her trembling tongue but half forming the words. Her eyes stared in terror, and beneath her dark skin the blood shrank away and left her pale. She recoiled from him, her left hand carrying behind her instinctively the babe that lay on her arm.

"Sir Arthur bowed, but found no word. He could only look questioning-ly at Law."

"Madam," said the latter, "Sir Arthur Pembroke journeys through as the messenger of Lord Belmont, governor at Albany, to spread peace among the Western tribes. He has by mere chance blundered upon our valley, and will delay over night. It seemed well you should be advised."

Mary Conynge, gray and pale, haggard and horrified, dreading all things and knowing nothing, found no manner of reply. Without a word she turned and fled back into the cabin.

Sir Arthur once more looked about him. Motioning to the others of the party to remain outside the gate, Law led him within the stockade. On one hand stood Pierre Noir, tall, silent, impassive as a savage, leaning upon his gun and fixing on the red coat of the English uniform an eye none too friendly. Jean Brobeant, his piece half ready and his voluble tongue half on the point of breaking over restraint, Law greeted with a silent yet watchful group, their weapons well in hand, stood numbers of the savage allies of this new war-lord. Pembroke turned to Law again.

"You are strongly stationed, sir; but I do not understand."

"It is my home."

"But yet—why?"

"As well this as any, where one leaves an old life and begins a new," said Law. "Tis as good a place as any if one would leave all behind, and if he would forget."

"And this—that is to say—madam?"

Sir Arthur stumbled in his speech. John Law looked him straight in the eye, a slow, sad smile upon his face.

"Had we here the plank of poor La Salle his ship," said he, "we might call the message of that other renegade above our door—'Nous sommes tous sauvages!'"

CHAPTER XXV.

THE DREAM.

That night John Law dreamed as he

as he had said, actually on her knees before him.

John Law extended a hand and stopped her. "There," said he. "It will suffice. I cannot demean you. There is the child."

"You called her Catharine!" broke out the woman once more in her ungovernable rage. "You would name my child—"

"Madam, get up!" said John Law, sharply and sternly. "Get up on your feet and look me in the face. The child shall be called for her who should have been her mother. Let those forgive who can. That you have ruined my life for me is but perhaps a fair exchange; yet you shall say no word against that woman whose life we have both of us despoiled."

CHAPTER XXVI.

BY THE HILT OF THE SWORD.

Law passed on out at the gate of the stockade down to the bivouac, where Pembroke and his men had spent the night.

"Now, Sir Arthur," said he to the latter, when he had found him, "come. I am ready to talk with you. Let us go apart."

Pembroke joined him, and the two walked slowly away toward the encircling wood which swept back of the stockade. Law turned upon him at length squarely.

"Sir Arthur," said he, "I think you would tell me something concerning the Lady Catharine Knollys. Do you bring any message from her?"

The face of Pembroke flamed scarlet with sudden wrath. "Message!" said he. "Message from Lady Catharine Knollys to you? By God! sir, her only message could be her hope that she might never hear your name again."

"You have still your temper, Sir Arthur, and you speak harsh enough."

"Harsh or not," rejoined Pembroke, "I scarce can endure her name upon your lips. You, who scouted her, who left her, who took up with the lowest woman in all Great Britain, as it now appears—who would consort with this creature—"

"In this matter," said John Law, simply, "you are not my prisoner, and I beg you to speak frankly. It shall be man and man between us."

"How you could have stooped to such baseness is what mortal man can never understand," resumed Sir Arthur, bitterly. "Good God! to abandon a woman like that so heartlessly—"

"Sir Arthur," said John Law, his voice trembling, "I do myself the very great pleasure of telling you that you lie!"

For a moment the two stood silent, facing each other, the face of each stony, gone gray with the emotions back of it.

"There is light," said Pembroke, "and abundant space."

"They turned and paced back farther toward the open forest glade. Yet now and again their steps faltered and half paused, and neither man cared to go forward or to return. Pembroke's face, stern as it had been, again took on the imprint of a growing hesitation."

"Mr. Law," said he, "there is something in your attitude which I admit puzzles me. I ask you in all honor, I ask you on the hilt of that sword which I know you will never disgrace, why did you thus flout the Lady Catharine Knollys? Why did you scorn her and take up with this woman yonder in her stead?"

"Sir Arthur," said John Law, with trembling lips, "I must be very low indeed in reputation, since you can ask me question such as this."

"But you must answer!" cried Sir Arthur, "and you must swear!"

"If you would have my answer and my oath, then I give you both. I did not do what you suggest, nor can I conceive how any man should think me guilty of it. I loved Lady Catharine Knollys with all my heart. 'Twas my chief bitterness, keener than even the thought of the gallows itself, that she forsook me in my trouble. Then, bitter as any man would be, I persuaded myself that I cared naught. Then came this other woman. Then I—well, I was a man, and a fool—a fool, Sir Arthur, a most miserable fool! Every moment of my life since first I saw her, I have loved the Lady Catharine; and, God help me, I do now!"

Sir Arthur struck his hand upon the hilt of his sword. "You were more lucky than myself, as I know," said he, and from his lips broke half a groan.

"Good God!" broke out Law. "Let us not talk of it. I give you my word of honor, there has been no happiness to this. But come! We waste time. Let us cross swords!"

"Wait. Let me explain, since we are in the way of it. You must know that 'twas within the plans of Montague that Lady Catharine Knollys should be the agent of your freedom. I was pledged to the Lady Catharine to assist her, though, as you may perhaps see, sir," and Pembroke gulped in his throat as he spoke, "'twas difficult enough, this part that was assigned to me. It was I, Mr. Law, who drove the coach to the gate, the coach which brought the Lady Catharine. 'Twas she who opened the door of Newgate jail for you. My God! sir, how could you walk past that woman, coming there as she did, with such a purpose!"

"At hearing these words, the tall figure of the man opposed to him drooped and sank, as though under some fearful blow. He staggered to a nearby support and sank weakly to a seat, his head falling between his hands, his whole face convulsed."

"Ah!" said he, "you did right to cross seas in search of me! God hath indeed found me out and given me my punishment. Yet I ask God to bear me witness that I knew not the truth. Come, Sir Arthur! Come, I beseech you! Let us fall!"

"I shall be no man's executioner for his sentence on himself. I could not fight you now." His eye fell by chance upon the blotch in Law's blood-stained tunic. "And here," he said; "see! You are already wounded."

"'Twas but one woman's way of showing her regard," said Law,

"Nay, I am glad of it; since it proves the truth of all you say, even as it proves me to be the most unworthy man in all the world. Oh, what had it meant to me to know a real love! God! How could I have been so blind!"

"Tis the ancient puzzle."

"Yes!" cried Law. "And let us make an end of puzzles! Your quarrel, sir, I admit is just. Let us go on."

"And again I tell you, Mr. Law," replied Sir Arthur, "that I will not fight you."

"Then, sir," said Law, dropping his own sword upon the grass and extending his hand with a broken smile, "'tis I who am your prisoner!"

The Cry of the Dreamer.

I am tired of planning and toiling in the crowded hives of men; I am weary of building and spoiling, and of the things that are done in the name of the dear old river.

I am sick of the showy seeming of a life that is half a lie; Of the faces lined with scheming in the throng that surrizes by; From the sleepless thoughts and endeavors I would go where the children play; For a dreamer lives forever.

I can feel no pride, but pity for the buried rich and noble. There is nothing sweet in the city. But the patient lives of the poor. Oh, the little hands who suffer! And the child mind choked with weeds! The daughter's heart grown willful. And the father's heart that bleeds!

No, not from the street's rude bustle. From trophies of mart and stage. I would the world were made to rustle. And the meadow's kindly page. Let me dream as of old by the river. For a dreamer lives forever. And a toiler dies in a day! —John Boyle O'Reilly.

A Birthday.

Hear me hail the glad newcomer. Joy come crowding in its train; One long day of glorious summer. Golden day, mild days of rain; Dare it be a child's birthday? When 'tis yours, the happy day?

Though such rain the sage foretell as 'Neer this year of tempests know. Though long lines of spread umbrellas In the throng that surrizes by. Though the world cries "What a storm!" I shall know it fine and warm.

Though through all the land all men shall Shiver, shuddering, soaked, make moan. Vow of ominous rain torrential. Tell that far has summer flown. Tell that far has summer flown. Give them—fools and blind—the lie.

I shall bless—Oh, never doubt me! Summer's new-born genial ways. Through the best of summer's days. For the happy whole day through All my thoughts shall turn to you. —Pall Mall Gazette.

Saws Worth $5,000.

Probably the most expensive saws in use anywhere in the world are those in the factories of Pennsylvania, where articles are manufactured of slate. In one of these factories there are 300 horizontal saws, twelve feet in length, each of which is furnished with seventy-five cutting diamonds, each saw being worth $5,000. The slate land which furnishes the material for these costly saws to work upon was, once, so little valued that the tract upon which the famous Chapman quarry in Pennsylvania is situated was sold for a pint of whiskey. Its subsequent owners have taken millions of dollars from the land.

Japanese Vases.

The poorest man in Japan may have a vase, will have a vase. It is very likely but a piece of bamboo, closed at either end with a joint, an opening cut in one side through which the water is poured, and the end of the flower stalk put in. This humble man, with his innate conception of true art, will make his simple vase and his one long-stemmed chrysanthemum a picture of such loveliness that there will be no need for him to envy his rich neighbor with his more elaborate vases and his greater profusion of flowers.—Florence Pottier in Good Housekeeping.

Atmosphere in the Home.

The real art of decorating, says an authority, is to allow nothing to be in a house that is not a treasure. Having established this principle, then surround these treasures with a fitting atmosphere. It is this marvelous gift of atmosphere that makes the treasures (even though they may be commonplace in the eyes of the vulgar) effective or ineffective.

Painless, Natural Childbirth.

Baby's coming into the world should be preceded by a certain preparation on the part of every woman who expects to become a mother. She owes it as a duty to her unborn babe, and to herself; her duty to her unborn babe is to use every means within her power to aid his entrance into the world. Baby cannot help himself in this ordeal, therefore mother must. He has a hard enough time after his arrival, so let us make his coming easy. His health in after life depends greatly upon the manner of his coming: would you have your child a cripple, or would you have him a tower of strength? Strong men are but grown-up children; a famous surgeon in Vienna is devoting his life-work to the cure of little helpless cripples, deformed by birth; do not allow your child to become a cripple.

Mother's Friend

Is a salient which will forestall any possibility of accident at birth; that is, it relaxes all the abdominal muscles and tissues, and permits of an easy access to the child. It eases the mother's pain, and so assists nature that when baby comes he starts out in life with a constitution well able to fight life's battles, and to bloom into strong pure manhood that is the comfort and delight of every true mother's heart.

A Newly Invented Engine Having Great Possibilities: The Motor Problem Solved? Should Lower Price of Machines. International Race.

Automobile authorities have expressed opinions to the effect that no further changes of a radical nature would occur in the motor vehicle industry unless the methods and principles of generating motive power were to be revolutionized. Statements of this nature were frequently heard at the recent auto show at Madison Square Garden, New York. That improvements were possible and perhaps necessary has been admitted by all, but as to just what form they should take no one was prepared to commit himself.

Strangely enough, just what was set down as a future probability has become very much a part of the immediate present, and from all indications a recent invention of G. F. Osborne of New York city will prove a decided sensation to the motor world when its features are entirely appreciated. Mr. Osborne has developed an engine that is believed by experts who have seen it to be a noteworthy step toward the solving of the automobile problem, for this great industry is still in its problematical and experimental stage. In addition the invention has made a de-

The motive power is a gasoline engine of the usual type. This engine is coupled to a crank shaft, to which is also connected a cylinder which acts alternately as a compressor, forcing air into a tank, and a motor giving out the power stored. It is a fact well known in physics that when air expands from a high pressure of a lower one an intense cold is generated. This, of course, immediately occurs when an engine is put to work. The cold air from the exhaust of the engine is sent through the water and cools and circulates it through the water jacket of the gas cylinder at the same time.

The advantages of this combination impress the expert autoist at once, but it is necessary to ride in the car to appreciate it fully.

The writer had the pleasure of a ride with Mr. Osborne in an auto which he had equipped with his engine. Just outside the garage at 413 West One Hundred and Fiftieth street, New York, we encountered a very steep hill. In order to give the engine a test we steered boldly at the ascent. In spite of the comparative smallness of the power producing apparatus we arrived at the top in a manner surprising in its ease. The remainder of the trip passed without accident, and the writer, at first inclined to criticize, had nothing but words of praise.

Entries for places on the French team for the international automobile cup contest of 1904 were closed recently in Paris at the Automobile Club de France. The total list comprises twenty-nine machines.

The reputations of the big "engines" thus represented are such as give at once a very formidable aspect to the French contingent which is to invade German territory in the peaceful and sportive campaign next June, and very naturally French patriotism and confidence are at high mark.

The University of Pennsylvania automobile club has challenged Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Cornell to compete in a series of auto races for the championship of the colleges.

EIGHT MEN WHO RUN BIG STATES

GOVERNOR BENJAMIN B. ODELL, who has succeeded Thomas C. Platt as head of the Republican organization in New York state, drove an ice wagon for his father in Newburg, N. Y., when a young man and delivered ice from door to door. He is five feet nine and one-half inches tall and weighs over 200 pounds. When he broke ground at St. Louis for the New York state building, the governor grasped the spade—an old and rusty one, by the way—in a most approved manner and with so skillful a touch that it was apparent he knew something about the implement.

B. B. ODELL.

"You handle the shovel very gracefully," remarked one of the executive party.

"Yes," replied the governor. "I have often thought that it is a shame to spall a good cellar digger to make a poor governor."

The governor himself, a man of culture and refinement, has a great dislike for all shams in the way of pretended knowledge, etc., and has, moreover, a rather sharp tongue in criticizing them at times.

Not long ago he was giving utterance to his opinions of many men and things, chiefly the former, when some one chanced to mention a New York politician, a member of Tammany Hall, who, it is said, had recently had the courage to return from Paris and assert to some of his political friends that he "thought in French" to such an extent that his sentences were now involuntarily constructed along Gallic lines.

"Yes," Mr. Odell dryly commented. "It's too bad about Blank. He fell down when he was in Paris and broke his English."

Joseph M. Terrell, the popular governor of Georgia, began life as a playboy, and the old red mule behind which he trudged in bare feet is still hale and hearty. Recently a former schoolmate of the governor, while in a remissive mood, referred to their school days. "Joe Terrell first went to school to Mrs. Strozer," he said, "and afterward to Colonel W. T. Revell, now editor of the Meriwether Indicator. It is still a matter of history in Greenville that Joe was the only boy who was never thrashed by the colonel, who, as a teacher, was a firm believer in the rod."

"Joe," we boys would say when we heard that he was to change teachers, "the colonel will give it to you when you come over here with us."

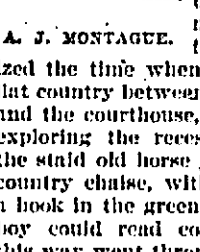

"But they missed it, for Joe and his teacher got along from the start. Never once did Colonel Revell find it necessary to use the birch on the future governor. Joe has since confessed, however, that up had him scared, and he entered Colonel Revell's school prepared to have his jacket dusted."

Andrew Jackson Montague, governor of Virginia, is very fond of fishing, shooting and good literature. The broad mouthed bass is his favorite fish, and he has much scientific as well as practical knowledge of the art of Walton. The governor is well read in history and political economy and is fond of Balzac. His boyhood friends state that as a youth he used to deliver oracles and even utilized the time when driving across the flat country between his mother's home and the courthouse, some ten miles, in exploring the recesses of books. As the staid old horse jogged along in the country chaise, with reins attached to a hook in the green baize covering, the boy could read conveniently, and in this way went through Prescott's voluminous "Conquest of Mexico."

Richard Yates, governor of Illinois, as was his father before him, has kept a scrapbook for nearly thirty years and has pasted into it everything which concerned him and in which he took interest. One of the first entries in the scrapbook is the story of a contest in declamation away back in 1875, when the present governor was a pupil of the Whipple academy at Jacksonville, Ill. (the preparatory school of Illinois college).

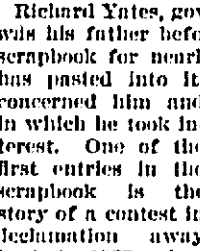

Richard Yates, who delivered the "Supposed Speech of John Adams," commenting on his effort, the local reporter said, "The young gentleman, for one of his years, did exceedingly well, and the audience greeted him with deserved applause." He was then fifteen years old.

William J. Bryan, who was in the same school and of the same age, was also a competitor in this contest, and of him the reporter said: "Mr. Bryan delivered Patrick Henry's celebrated speech in a most creditable manner. His voice, however, is not settled as yet, and because of this his effort was not so good as it otherwise would have been."

Neither Yates nor Bryan won a prize, however, the rewards of excellence going to two young men who as yet have not attained to national fame.

Edwin Warfield, the new governor of Maryland, describes himself as a lawyer and farmer. He is one of the most prominent citizens of Baltimore, is a man of wealth and has been conspicuous in state politics for many years.

Born in Maryland fifty-five years ago, the governor was educated in the public schools and at St. Timothy's Hall, Catonsville, and then embarked in business. He is the founder and president of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland and has been a state senator, president of the senate and surveyor of the port of Baltimore, and was a delegate to the Democratic national convention of 1892. The governor is very much interested in patriotic matters and in 1902 was elected president general of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

A. B. Cummins, who is serving his second term as governor of Iowa, is noted for his energy, power and vigor on the platform. The gift of oratory was acquired by Governor Cummins in early years, but an experience in one of his first attempts at public speaking is rendered much more amusing by the lapse of time than when it occurred.

When he was twenty-one he went back to his old home in Pennsylvania for a visit. Soon after his arrival a soldier's regiment was held, and he was asked to speak. The meeting was held at a little crossroads, and Mr. Cummins, with all the dignity at his command, began with the statement that, unfortunately for him, he was born too late to take part in the dangers and glories of a soldier's life. Just then he was attacked with mental paralysis and couldn't say another word. After an instant of hesitation he noticed a grizzled veteran in the corner lean over and whisper to his companion. The whisper was audible all over the house, and the speaker heard "It's a blamed pity he was born at all." That broke the spell, and like a flash his scattered ideas returned, and he made a speech that satisfied even the whisperer in the corner.

The salaries of governors range from $1,500 in Vermont and Oregon, the smallest amount paid, to $10,000 in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the largest amount. In addition to Vermont and Oregon, New Hampshire pays a small sum to her governor, Nahum J. Bachelder, who, runs the state for $2,000 per annum. Maine also pays her governor the same sum. Wyoming and Nebraska give $2,500. West Virginia, $2,700. Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Mississippi $3,500. Connecticut, Michigan, Nevada, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Washington, $4,000. Maryland, $4,500. Alaska, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Indiana, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Virginia and Wisconsin $5,000. Illinois $6,000. Kentucky $6,500, and Massachusetts, Ohio and Porto Rico, $8,000. Governor Bachelder is a native of his state and is forty-nine years old. Farming is his favorite business when he is not holding office.

No chief executive of any commonwealth in the Union has a greater hold on the affections of the plain people than has James H. Frazier, governor of Tennessee. He came of sturdy Scotch stock, and his people for generations have been noted for their public spirit. His father, Judge Frazier, while criminal judge was impeached by the famous Brownlow legislature because he, in his judicial capacity, released members of the state legislature on writs of habeas corpus who had been arrested for absenting themselves from the legislative halls and refused to be counted in a quorum necessary to enact obnoxious laws. Judge Frazier was restored to civil rights by the constitutional convention of 1870 and soon after was re-elected to the very office from which he had been enjoined.

Governor Frazier, simple and unostentatious himself, attracts the humble as well as the more exalted, and any day on the streets of Chattanooga the greeting of "How're you, Huz?" may be heard from some mechanic or farmer to whom the governor of the state is just plain Jim Frazier.

Good Teamster Can Do Much for Animal in His Charge.

The strength required of an average sized team of horses and the strain on the horses to draw a heavy load over stones or out of a deep rut hole, or over many other avoidable obstacles is often greater than to draw the same load over a smooth surface fifty yards.

It would be a small estimate to say a careless driver strains his team in that manner twenty times a day. If a driver prevents straining his horses twenty times each day he will save them 1,000 yards of unnecessary pulling and in the 300 working days of the year 300,000 yards, and in five years 1,500,000 yards—nearly 1,000 miles.

With proper judgment and carefulness the driver, at the end of the five years, will have in place of a team of weak, over-worked, bony horses, a team of healthy and strong ones.

From a business point of view will it not pay any horse owner, driver, or teamster to be careful and considerate and to avoid all unnecessary strains on horses?—Our Dumb Animals.

The Unpossessed.

My heart's desire hath led me
Through barren lands and vales,
And bitter bread I've fed me,
And bade me drink of pain.
Ah, me! I climbed a weary way
To heights of her disdain.
Yet would I give the years I live
To walk the path again.

The heart's possession beside me
Leads me a level way;
There may no ill befall me,
No thirst or famine stay.
She hath no wish but wish of mine,
No joy save to obey.
And at my side her form must bide
Until my dying day.

My heart's possession hath stilled me
From all unrest and pain;
Yea, e'en the hope that thrilled me,
Why too keen pain and pain.
Yet, O my heart, my heart's desire,
My unattained dream divine,
That never turned the while I yearned
Nor closed her hands in mine!

Your Heart May Be Weak. One Person in Four Has a Weak Heart.

One of the surest signs of a weak heart is shortness of breath after exercise. Your heart is not able to pump the blood fast enough to your lungs. As some of the other symptoms of Heart Trouble are: Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulder; Fainting or Weak Spells; Dry Cough; Swelling of Feet and Ankles; Cold Feet or Hands.

No one can afford to allow a weak heart to go without medicine, because weak heart means poor circulation, and poor circulation means weak lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.

If, therefore, you suspect heart trouble, begin taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. The Heart Cure will do you good, as it is a splendid tonic for the blood and nerves, and will revitalize your entire system. Finally, remember, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold under a guarantee that the first bottle will do you good.

If it doesn't—your money back.

If you are afflicted with heart trouble for this year, it would be apparently all right, and without a moment's warning would fall as though slain. The attacks were frequent, and a terrible dread possessed me, as I never knew when or where, nor under what conditions I would be attacked, and whether I would survive them. I consulted and was treated by some of the most eminent physicians of the state, but finding relief from this source, I began feeling Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and began to improve at once. I used ten bottles, which entirely cured me, as I have not had an attack for five years. —MRS. JOHN DIESBACK, Lehigh, O.

KILPATRICK MAY HAVE TO LEAVE

Coach of Track Athletic Teams May Be Asked to Resign—New Rules by Board.

(Special To The Gazette)
Madison, Wis., Jan. 28.—Charles H. Kilpatrick, holder of the world's record in the half-mile run, who has been coach of the university track athletic teams for the last five years and graduate manager of all Wisconsin athletic teams for three years, also "Andy" M. O'Dea, who for almost a generation has been the coach of the Wisconsin crews, are in danger of being asked to resign their coaching positions because of a ruling made recently by the athletic authoritative body in favor of the graduate system of coaching in all departments.

The graduate coach system has been adopted by the football department by the election of Arthur Curtis as coach and E. B. Coehms as assistant, but when graduate candidates for the job of coaching the baseball team were defeated and a professional league player, Howard Cassibolne, was elected, a storm broke demanding strict enforcement of the graduate coaching system. The faculty body, called the athletic council, is in favor of applying the rule and has delayed the ratification of the contract with Mr. Cassibolne. In the next few days it will be determined whether Coaches Kilpatrick and O'Dea change their positions or not. Neither would necessarily leave the university. Coach O'Dea is a member of the staff of instruction, receiving $1,000 a year from the university as an assistant physical director, inspector in boxing and handball. Manager Kilpatrick would perhaps be retained as manager of the athletic teams. Probably never before has there been such a scramble at Madison after the salaries of coaching positions as now and the campaigns have developed great dissatisfaction and personal bitterness.

SUSPECT IS ARRESTED FOR SCHAFFER MURDER

White Man Who Smokes Opium Is Taken Into Custody by Detectives at Negro's House.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 28.—With his clothing in several places dotted with blood, one clot on the right coat sleeve being five inches long and three inches wide, his face badly scratched, Harry Behr was arrested as a suspect in connection with the murder of Miss Sarah C. Schaffer at Bedford, Ind., the night of Jan. 21. Chief of Detectives Sullivan and Detective Maher arrested Behr at the home of Roger White, a negro with whom he had been boarding since the day after the murder. Behr bore two deep scratches, one on each side of his forehead and two or three minor abrasions about the face. His clothing contains several blood clots of large size, which he attempted to remove after going to White's house.

According to White's story Behr asked for permission to board with him and "smoke a little hop." White assented and Behr went to the negro's home, where he remained until his arrest. Behr smoked opium frequently and was twice heard to say that he had a woman's blood on his clothing. Behr awoke from a stupor induced by the opium pipe and screamed for Lizzie White, calling out that he had killed a woman. The negroes notified the detectives and the arrest followed.

FEW FACTS

The following compilation of times and places of previous republican national conventions will be interesting just now:

Philadelphia, June 17, 1856.
Chicago, May 16, 1860.
Baltimore, June 7, 1864.
Philadelphia, June 6, 1872.
Cincinnati, June 14, 1876.
Chicago, June 2, 1880.
Chicago, June 3, 1884.
Chicago, June 19, 1888.
Minneapolis, June 7, 1892.
St. Louis, June 16, 1896.
St. Louis, June 16, 1896.
Philadelphia, June 19, 1900.
It appears that no national convention of the republican party has ever been called for so late a date as that of 1904, which is to meet at Chicago June 21. The November election will occur, however, on the latest possible date, namely the 8th, which will be "the first Tuesday after the first Monday" of the month, so that the campaign will be exactly as long as that of 1900, when the convention met on June 19 and the election was on Nov. 6.

JUDGE TUTTILL FREES MAYOR FROM BLAME

Decides That Carter Harrison Is Not to Blame for the Disaster at the Iroquois Theater.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—By a decision in which the verdict of the coroner's jury as it related to him was spoken of as "a very great wrong," and "an unmitigated stigma," Mayor Harrison was granted a writ of habeas corpus by Judge Richard Tuttil.

A declared willingness on the part of the jurist to grant the writ on the ground that the form of the jury's findings was illegal was objected to by the mayor, who insisted on a determination of the case on its merits.

It was on the specific question of whether there was evidence before the jury which warranted the holding of the executive that the court's ruling finally turned. The question was disposed of by the court when he declared that the verdict was "without any basis in the law or in the facts as they have been testified to before the coroner's jury."

Judge Tuttil held that the mayor was no more liable than the governor of the state would be if a big charitable institution were to burn down, with consequent loss of life, or than the president of the United States would be if such a calamity were to befall at the naval academy or at West Point.

Unknown Murderer Suspends Body of Farmer to Avert Suspicion.

Greenville, Ill., Jan. 28.—The body of Charles Ehril, a farmer living four miles south of here, was found hanging in his smokehouse. The body was frozen stiff and at first Ehril was believed to have committed suicide. Investigation, however, revealed that the back of his head bore an ugly wound and blood covered his face, instead of having run down his back. This leads to the belief that Ehril was struck and prostrated, face downward, and lay awhile, and was then hanged to avert suspicion of murder. The door to the smokehouse was propped shut from the outside.

GOSSIP ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Interesting News From the Closing Reports of the Windy City's Mart.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 28.—The wheat market has been a nervous one all day with 1 1/4c range sawing with the various war rumors and the changing temper of the crowd finally closing strong near the high price of the day. Europe seems to take a more serious view of the war situation this afternoon and sends cables to that effect. The trade has been light and no feature to it. The local talent gunning for stop orders and buying or selling as the humor seized them. The bull crowd seemed to be doing little, leaving the market to care for itself. We still feel that with the uncertainty of the situation in the east it is better to buy wheat on the breaks, take fair profits, but always have a little on hand to take advantage of the war news at any time. You don't know when some excited Jap may fire off a gun and make trouble.

Corn softened some early but was steadily absorbed all day and finished at the top. May corn looks a purchase around 49c all the time for a good turn.

Oats were featureless, the trade light but offerings were taken at slight concessions. Buy oats on soft spots.

Provisions held well with only a fair trade. The situation is unchanged. We would buy May pork on breaks.
